Turning Stamp Holders demonstrated by Bob Walker

Past-president Bob Walker presented the demonstration for the Club's August meeting. The demonstration was the turning of a holder for a roll of stamps.

Bob started with a wood block about 6 inches long and 3 inches square. First he turned the block to round, about 1 3/4 – inches in diameter.

About 1 3/4 inches in from the tail end he used the chisel to part the piece completely.

He then used a 1 5/8-inch Foster bit in the tail stock to drill out the cylinder. The depth of the drill hole was 1 1/2 inches. This drilled hole will hold the roll of stamps when the piece is finished.

Next the bottom was cleaned up with a fine gouge and the piece sanded.

The 1 3/4 - inch cylinder previously parted was mounted. This piece will become the top of the finished project. A small amount of wood was turned off of the tail end and a tenon developed to fit inside the previously drilled piece. This step will take some patience to develop the friction fit properly.

The piece was re-chuck so that the top (or lid) of the holder could be turned. At approximately half way up the cylinder the parting tool and gouge were used to develop the top outside. The piece was turned convex from the tenon to the center-line axis, as can be seen above. Then the lid was parted off.

To cut the exit slit for the stamps, a Dremel tool was mounted on a V-block and a 1-inch slot cut.
